Peer-based Recovery Support

The Certified Recovery Specialist (CRS) Program supports individuals through various pathways to recovery, beyond the earliest stages to the more complex process of recovery stabilization and maintenance. A critical aspect of this process involves building a strong and unique rapport between the person in recovery and a peer who has similar lived experience. The peer-based CRS will help navigate, advocate and support the participant through their recovery journey. Certified Recovery Specialists work to facilitate positive change and instill hope by modeling stable recovery and sharing strategies for success.

Services are voluntary, person-centered, and are strength-based. Our peer support programs are designed to help to build, support and utilize recovery-oriented systems of care in our communities in order to best serve individuals in recovery, regardless of their current stage of recovery.

Who could benefit from this program?

The Council’s Chester County Certified Recovery Specialist (CRS) Program targets individuals living in Chester County who are receiving Medical Assistance. One-on-one recovery support is provided to help individuals achieve and sustain long-term recovery.

Through our broad array of support services, The Council is dedicated to helping individuals build self-esteem, increase good decision-making skills, rebuild family relationships and empower individuals to become productive members of their community.

How can we help?

Participants in the Certified Recovery Specialist Program are matched with a CRS who will meet with them regularly. The CRS will accompany the participant through the continuum of care, assist him/her in navigating community systems while helping to remove barriers and teaching the skills necessary to enrich the participant’s quality of life while obtaining and sustaining long-term recovery.
